Excerpt: . . . SERMON XII. PREACHED BEFORE THE QUEEN AT WHITEHALL, ON EASTER-DAY, 1692. Ph1l. iii. 10. That I may know him, and the power of his resurrection. WE shall easily see the design of these words, and what use we are to make of them, if we look at their connexion with the discourse that goes before. St. Paul, in this chapter, sets himself to shew the excellency and the great advantages of the knowledge of Jesus Christ, and how inconsiderable, how unworthy to be named in comparison therewith, all those things were that the Jews, his countrymen, so much gloried in. His discourse, upon this occasion, is so very remarkable, that it will be worth our while to run over the particulars of it. also, saith he in the 4th verse, might have confidence in the flesh. If any other man ihinketh that he hath...
