Plowing for and seeding winter wheat made excellent progress with the soil generally in fine condition. The early sown came up quickly to a good stand. Pastures were good throughout the month. Haying and thrashing proceeded with favorable weather. A large crop of prairie hay was secured. October.--An unusually favorable month for crops and fall work. The temperature was above normal until the last week. No severe storms occurred, and rain interfered little witli work. Corn dried out rapidly and husking began about the middle of the month but generally made slow progress until the lower temperatures the last week. Winter wheat made excellent growth except in few localities where more rain would have been beneficial-The pastures were good, feed abundant and stock continued in good condition. The harvest of sugar beets and potatoes progressed rapidly. November--Snow, moist weather, and wet soil delayed corn husking somewhat but work was well advanced at the end of the month. Winter wheat generally made an excellent growth and pastures were good. December.--Warm, pleasant weather prevailed for the first 17 days but was followed by snow and decidedly colder weather. Kail work was well advanced when the cold wither began. The mild weather caused wheat and rye to grow unusuaily late and grain continuel! in good condition. Pastures were good and feed for stock abundant. Monthly and Annual Mean Temperatures for the Tear 1920, with Departures from the Normal. Stations Xorthrastern Division...
