Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Regulations Enacted by the Board of Trustees for the Government of the Catholic University of America Associate Professors and Tutors may be required by the Rector to devote to class work any number of hours per week, not exceeding ten, as the needs of their Departments may require. All instructors shall observe in their academic work, and other duties connected with the University, the laws prescribed by the Board of Trustees, and the directions given them by the Rector. Sec. 7. Legitimate Absences of Instructors. The Rector shall have power to excuse an instructor from attendance on his classes for a temporary period on occasions of great personal emergency, or when his presence may be required at meetings in which the interests of the University are involved; provided that his place can be supplied without unreasonable detriment to his students. Chapter II. Of Schools and Departments. Sec. 1. Schools Defined. A School is an aggregation of Departments which are so related to one another by the natural connection of the subjects-matter of their courses of study, or by the similarity of their methods of investigation, that they can be conveniently grouped together for purposes of instruction and government. Sec. 2. Schools in This University. The Schools established in this University are (1) The School of the Sacred Sciences; (2) The School of Law; (3) The School of Philosophy; (4) The School of Letters; (5) The School of Sciences.
